My Husband Flirts With Women

Whenever I go to a party with my husband, he flirts with other women. It doesn't matter how old they are, aunts, young 20-somethings, married women etc. He will compliment them and laugh and crack jokes with them. I feel so disrespected by his behavior. How can I curb his flirting?

Sincerely,
Mrs. Flirting Husband.

Dear Mrs. Flirting Husband.

Let's deal with the facts. You have a husband. He flirts. You feel disrespected. You can let go of your husband, stop his flirting or stop feeling disrespected. So, you can look at this situation in at least three different ways. I am assuming the first option is not something you are considering at this time.

First, let's look at stopping his flirting. Here's the truth. Even after marriage, we continue to be attracted to other people. However, love, mutual understanding, companionship and compatibility lead us to choose our spouse over someone else every day. So, the problem here is not with him flirting (since he is married to you) but his intention behind the flirting. Answer the questions below, to decide what his intentions are. Remember to go with your gut feeling.

1. Does her flirt when you are not around? (Has someone else mentioned his flirting to you?)
2. How frequent is his flirting? (e.g. Does he flirt all the time, at every party, after he has had couple of drinks, or only once in a while)
3. Does he exchange phone numbers or other personal information with the 'flirtee'?
4. Does he compliment you too? Is complimenting others part of his nature?

5. Do you see him having prolonged conversations with a woman over the phone or talking about another woman to you?

Once you answer these questions, you can make a clearer decision about what you would like to do next. If you answered yes to 1, 3 and 5, you may have a more serious concern.

Now, let's look at you feeling disrespected. If he is being affectionate towards you and complimenting other women, he may not intend to be disrespectful, even though you are feeling disrespected.

Discuss your feelings of feeling disrespected without blaming him for his behavior. Focus on your discomfort/sadness/annoyance rather than his flirting. If he realizes how deeply it is affecting you and wants you to help him with it, come up with a private signal that will let him know that you feel uncomfortable. You could pat him on his shoulder to remind him "he's doing it again."

However, if his flirting is of a more serious nature (see above), I would suggest talking to a professional who can help you as a couple to deal with your concern.

Take care and Good luck.
